

MAIN STORIES TRUMP'S DISPLAY OF STRENGTH
p.6

THE LAST WORD
How to buy your own
T. rex
p.40

INTERNATIONAL Kim's new nuclear threat to the U.S. p.17

THE WEEK

THE BEST OF THE U.S. AND INTERNATIONAL MEDIA

Money for nothing?

Why Clinton is facing about her Wall Street
and contributions
p.8

Wine: To diversity!

"So many wines, so little time," said Fred Tasker in The Miami Herald. Whenever I think about the 1,021 wine grape varieties that are available in the U.S., I can't help wanting to seek out something new. Should you feel the same, here are three bottles to prime your taste for adventure.

2012 J. McClelland Charbono ($35). Charbono, a grape from France, thrives in California. This big, tannic Napa wine tastes of blueberries, black plums, and Asian spices.

2011 Pombal do Vésuvio ($24). This hearty Portuguese wine features two sturdy grapes—typically used in port—crushed by barefoot workers. It offers floral aromas plus more spice and black plum.

2013 Tascante 'Buonora' Carricante ($20). Carricante grapes grow on the volcanic slopes of Sicily's Mount Etna, and yield smoky, fruity, mineral whites like this one.